Part C: Reading Comprehension

Tom and Carol got married ۶ months ago but they are already famous for their rows. Neighbors said they could hear them shouting from the bus stop six hundred yards away. Mrs Fish, who lives opposite, said “First I asked them nicely to stop because my baby couldn’t get to sleep, but they didn’t. Then my husband knocked at their door but they threw a chair at him out of the window, but it just missed him. So, we rang the police and asked them for help.”

Tom and Carol told the judge they denied all the accusations, but the judge didn’t accept their explanation and sent them to separate prisons for two weeks. Mr and Mrs Fish and their baby are looking forward to some sleep!

“Fingers were made before forks.” When a person gives up good manners, puts aside his knife and fork, and dives into his food, someone is likely to repeat that saying.

The fork was an ancient farming tool, but for centuries no one thought of eating with it. Not until the eleventh century, when some Asian brought it to Italy, did the custom reach Europe.

By the fifteenth century, the use of the fork was widespread in Italy. The English explanation was that Italians were averse to eating food touched with fingers because all men’s fingers are not alike clean. English travelers told their friends of this funny custom, which surprised them and made them laugh.

Anyone who used a fork to eat was laughed at in England for the next hundred years. Not until the late ۱۶۰۰s did using a fork become something common.
